LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF THE WAR

Correspondence of the Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 25.—The American consulate-general at Moscow who has, since the beginning of the war, been delegated by the German government to handle German civil prisoners in Russia, is now making a determined effort to return these prisoners to Germany so that they may not suffer another winter in the interior of Russia. Although these prisoners have not been the victims of actual cruelty on the part of Russian officials, their condition has been indescribably wretched. Hundreds of them have died from cold, starvation and disease.

A recent order issued by Prince Liepoff, the governor of Moscow, stated explicitly that every German or Austrian of non-slavic origin, regardless of age, state of health, or any mitigating circumstances whatsoever, must leave Moscow before August 14, either for Germany or for one of the interior governments which have been chosen for the internment of civil prisoners and which already harbor over 160,000 men, women and children.

This order meant certain death for scores of Moscow residents whose physical condition was such that even a short journey under the best conditions would have been dangerous. John Snodgrass, the American consul-general, who had made a special study of these cases, appealed to the governor of Moscow for discrimination in the execution of the order of expulsion, but popular feeling has run so high against the German and Austrian subjects in Russia that it was stated that exceptions could not be made. An American correspondent sitting in the offices of the consul-general watched the stream of foreign subjects who were suddenly confronted with expulsion from the country which they had learned to consider their own. Most of them, although German or Austrian subjects, had lived so long in Russia that they were thoroughly Russian in their sympathies and some of the women had even been devoting their time to sewing and making clothing for the Russian soldiers. For a large percentage of them a return to Germany where all their associations had long been broken or a seclusion in the interior of Russia were alternatives offering equally dismal prospect.

Except in extreme cases, serious illness and infirmity do not interfere with the deporting of the patient. Crowded into trains commonly used for cattle, almost without food, scantily clad and in various conditions of disease and despair, these miserable persons are subjected to a railway journey which lasts for days, and in a great many cases are forced to march overland for 60 or 70 miles from the railroad station to the camp where they are to be interned.

The sanitary conditions on these trains are vile and there is every possibility for the spread of disease. There is no assistance for the sick and there is no protection against infection for those who are well. On the march from the railroad to the camp, large numbers have frozen to death along the way. The lot of these people is one which it would be difficult to exaggerate.

Mr. Snodgrass is at present trying to convince the governors of the various provinces that their co-operation is necessary, unless the condition of German civil prisoners in Russia is to become a national scandal.
